Bless these dozers

The Grayling Uptown District Association (GUDA) held a Blessing of the Dozers ceremony on Michigan Avenue on Saturday for the $1.3 million streetscape project. The ceremony was held to ensure the safety of the construction workers and success of the project. Dr. Bill Cargo, the pastor of the Michelson Memorial United Methodist Church, officiated at the ceremony. Cargo, pictured above, said during the blessing: "Almighty God, master of construction, bless these dozers. That they may clear the way for a new beginning in Grayling, strengthening hospitality, growing neighborliness and increasing prosperity. Amen."

Five candidates vying for Grayling City Council

by Dan Sanderson Staff Writer

Five people are running for three seats on the Grayling City Council.

Incumbents Lawrence "Larry" Akers and Kim McClain are being challenged by city residents Steve Anderson, Charles Armstrong and Cathy McGuire on the city's Nov. 6 election bal-

City council member Dennis Robinson, who was appointed to fill an expired term on the council in February, opted not to run for re-election.

Overall, job creation, economic development, community beautification and the Main Street America, Inc. theme park, proposed to developed south of the city, were issues raised by the candidates.

Following is a short profile on the candidates vying for the three four-year seats, why they are running for the council and the issues they think city officials will need to address.

Akers, the current Grayling mayor, has served the last four years on the council, and has previously served eight additional years on the city panel.

Akers, 56, is the central dispatch and emergency management director for Crawford County.

Akers said he wants to continue giving his time and efforts to the community on the city coun-

"I enjoy the position, and I want to continue with the projects that are developing and will continue to develop within the city," Akers said.

Akers said that housing was the top issue that officials need to address at the city council table.

"We need more affordable housing and single-family housing," he said.

The continued revitalization of the downtown business district, following the city's streetscape project, is one of the next issues the city council will need to address, Akers said.

"We need to bring in more businesses and get the downtown stores filled," Akers said.

In conjunction with addressing downtown, Akers said the council needs to focus on job cre-

Grayling Lions seek to start youth club

by Dan Sanderson Staff Writer

Grayling Lions members are seeking a few cubs to start a new youth organization to serve the community and the organization's goals.

The Grayling Lions Club is planning to start an Alpha Leo Club in the community.

Alpha Leo Clubs are for young people, male or female, between the ages of 12 and 18years-old.

The clubs are involved in community service projects and social events, receiving training in skills such as character development, leadership, networking and project management.

The goal of the Lions Club is to serve the community, with the primary focus to serve the blind.

The Alpha Leo Club would assist the Lions Club with their state and community projects. and will also spearhead their own initiatives.

The youth club would also help elderly residents mow their lawns, shovel snow and do other errands.

"Anything to help the community is what they would do, just like with us," said William Fitch, a Lion's Club member and a past club president. "With this fastpaced world today, people just don't have time to help."

The club may also be involved in taking hiking trips and doing other fund-raisers to benefit the community.

"A lot of it depends on the students, because we don't want to force anything on them that they don't want to do," said Bob Prause, the first vice president for the Grayling Lions Club.

The Alpha Leo Club would have their owns vests to wear at events, including community parades.

"It would be sharp if they were marching in our parades," Prause

The Grayling Lions Club is part of the Lion's District 11E2, which includes a 17-county area that stretches from Standish to the Mackinac Bridge. There are no Alpha Leo Clubs currently serving the district.

County pleages funds for tennis court rehab

by Dan Sanderson Staff Writer

The Crawford County Board of Commissioners, last week, returned the equivalent of a financial volley to Crawford AuSable School District for the high school's tennis court repairs.

The board, at it's monthly ways and means committee meeting, agreed to give $5,000 to the Crawford AuSable School District to finish a facelift on the tennis courts.

Half the funds will come from the county's economic development funds, while the remaining funds will come from a fund earmarked for environmental projects.

Mike Dunckel, the Crawford AuSable School District's business manager, said the surface of the court's have cracked due to the age of the materials and the beating the surface takes during hard winters.

In addition, roots from a nearby tree line have been growing underneath the surface, further uprooting the courts.

The cracks cause tennis balls to veer off the playing surface.

"They are just old and hard to use," Dunckel said.

School administrators and Crawford AuSable School Board of Education members have fielded a number of requests to have the courts repaired.

Over 90 percent of the tennis court is used by members of the community, especially during the weekends, Dunckel

The school district's tennis teams are also seeing increased participation, as they have been switched to fielding co-ed teams this fall, said Tim Sanchez, the athletic director for Crawford AuSable Schools.

Half of the six courts have been repaired. The roots from the trees have been rerouted so they should no longer be an

School officials sought financial support from the county to finish the job on the remaining tennis courts.

It will cost $30,000 for the entire rehabilitation project on the courts.

"They are in really bad shape, and a couple of them are really bad," Commissioner Mike Lange County Commissioner Rick Anderson agreed, suggesting the school district also seek funding support from the Grayling City Council and the Charter Township of Grayling Board of Trustees to support community recreation.

"You can hardly play on them," Anderson said.

Tennis Court Services of Gaylord has been hired to do the work. They will fill cracks with a composite material, and replace the concrete where there are larger cracks and seal the surface on the courts.

Grayling resident Mary Ruth Lowe, an avid tennis player who plays with a handful of other couples in the community, said she is pleased that the county supported the initiative to repair the courts for adults and student athletes.

"When kids leave high school, the likelihood of them playing team sports is pretty slim, but they can play tennis all of their lives," Lowe said.

Michigan takes center stage in presidential flurry

FINALLY, AFTER several years of complaining about America's political system to select candidates for president, -Michigan has its wish.

Michigan voters will cast ballots on Jan. 15 and actually take part in the presdidential nomination process after a bipartisan effort pushed a new presidential primary law through the legislature.

Gone – at least for this time around – are the laments that by the time Michigan's two major parties get around to holding a caucus or a convention or a primary, it's too late to mean anything because a handful of small states already have made the decisions.

Florida primary toward the front of the process, setting a state primary on Jan. 29, but Michigan moved two weeks ahead of that.

Michigan's new primary doesn't please everybody. Primary voters must declare which party ballot they want. Their names will be listed by party and these lists will be provided to the respective party organizations, but not to the public.

Many voters don't want to declare any partisan allegiance, which may chase some away from the election.

Estimated cost of the Michigan primary is about $10 million, which is another questionable feature, especially in light of continuing state budget crises and gaping deficits. Local officials as usual will conduct the primary, and the state will reimburse most of the cost to local units.

NEW HAMPSHIRE long has been sanctified as the first state in the land to pick presidents – or shoot down hopefuls - through its presidential primary. Dixville Notch, a resort village with a The Florida legislature also pushed the dozen or so voters in the far north of New Hampshire, has historical value as the first voting precinct in the nation to register its choice.

> If Dixville Notch casts six votes for Smith and four for Jones, that's supposed to forecast that Smith will be the next president.

Why is New Hampshire so important? There's no logical reason only tradi-

The Iowa party caucuses have achieved almost equal reverence with

New Hampshire. National party leaders, in a feeble attempt to broaden the selection process, more recently added South Carolina and Nevada to the early selection mix. None of these early nominating states is representative of the country as a whole, which is an example of why the whole system is fouled up.

As an aside, in the 1968 presidential primary season, I worked as a press aide in the presidential campaign of Gov. George Romney (that's the late Gov. George Romney of Michigan, not to be confused with his son and 2008 candidate, ex-Gov. Mitt Romney of Massachusetts). In the 1968 campaign, the New Hampshire primary was first, and the Wisconsin primary closely followed and was equally as important. George Romney campaigned heavily in both states; Iowa was nowhere to be found. I don't know why Wisconsin phased out and Iowa emerged, but a lot can happen in 40 years.

MICHIGAN DEMOCRATIC Sen. Carl Levin has been in the vanguard of the struggle to broaden the nominating process and to give Michigan a meaningful shot at it. Michigan Republicans only lately joined the charge.

Although bi-partisanship finally pushed Michigan into prominence, Sen. Levin and his Democratic allies deserve the bulk of the credit -- or blame -- for the new primary.

As it turns out, Democrats might consider the old adage: Be careful what you seek, because you may find it. Now that Michigan has a presidential primary, the top Democratic candidates have pledged not to campaign here, leaving the state wide open for an expected flurry of 5. Republican candidate activity.

The national Democratic party may ban Michigan delegates from next year's nominating convention in Denver if Michigan's jumps ahead of New Hampshire or Iowa. The national Republican party has threatened to cut Michigan's strength at the GOP convention next year in Minneapolis-St. Paul for the same reason. Both edicts could be rescinded, of course.

Because of its jump forward, Florida faces the same possible party sanctions.

HERE'S THE WAY the calendar

stands as of this week:

Iowa caucuses in early January, or maybe even in December; Wyoming Republican caucuses (another interloper) on Jan. 5; New Hampshire primary on Jan. 8; Michigan primary Jan. 15; Nevada caucuses, South Carolina Republican primary Jan. 19; Florida primary, South Carolina Democratic primary Jan. 29; primaries, caucuses, conventions or other selection processes in 19 other states including California, New York, New Jersey and Illinois, February

By then it all should be over.

Of course, there's still time for other states to get into the moving up act, but unless legal challenges or other unforeseen blockades come into play, when the decision on presidential candidates is made, Michigan voters will have had the chance to say something meaningful about the candidates they want in the White House.

walked with the octogenarian

To the editor:

On Sept. 7, I had the pleasure of walking a few miles beside (not in) the shoes of an octogenarian, 88 year old Clayton Klein. He is walking from Paradise to Hell and beyond. This is his fourth trip of this type, but he is not just four years into his walking experiences. He started walking in 1966, ordered to do so to help clear up a back Condition. He began doing longer and longer trips. He now walks about four miles every day, but sometimes farther, as now. He is dedicating this walk to the Hospice of Michigan orgainization. Donation envelopes were placed all along his route. I took the liberty of picking up one at the Silver Dollar Bar.

We walked only about six miles together, but that was plenty long enough to find out what a fascinating and marvelous fellow he is. Not only is he a walker, he is a canoe paddler, as well. He is the author of seven books thus far. We parted company in the Higgins Lake area. He headed 11 more miles on down Old 27 to the Sands Resort in the Houghton Lake area, where he intended to spend the night.

He keeps track of the daily distance he walks. Currently, it totals over 52,000 miles. I hope he makes it back next year. He pledges to do so, and after matching his pace a few miles, I'm quite sure he will be capable. Chuck Gosling

Local judges support Shawano and Nokomis

To the editor:

As judges of the local circuit and family court system, we read with interest the letter submitted last week by Mr. Borton regarding the plan to close two local state facilities that house juvenile delinquents. We agree with Borton that this plan will have a negative impact on our communities in several respects.

First and foremost is the fact that Shawano Center and Nokomis Challenge Center take children that are often rejected or ejected by private agency facilities. These two state facilities provide daily, round the clock treatment for the most difficult youth whose problems are often beyond the treatment capacity of private facility placements. Additionally, the families of the northern Michigan youth placed at Shawano and Nokomis can visit and actively be involved in the treatment of their children as opposed to traveling long distances to downstate residential

Secondly, the argument that closing these facilities will save state taxpayer dollars is a fallacy. The children in these facilities will not simply disappear when the doors close. They will either be transferred to a private facility where the costs are similar for state and local governments or to the Maxey state facility in Whitmore Lake, where the cost for each youth is currently $553.46 per day. Some may be released into local, northern Michigan communities before their treatment program can be properly completed, thereby increasing the risk of repeat offenders. Finally, closing Shawano and Nokomis will result in the layoff or displacement of nearly 100 employees who work at these facilities and have a significant impact on the local economies. In addition to maintaining the financial benefits that accompany professional jobs, most of the employees and their families actively participate in our schools, churches and local organizations. These state employees have supported our communities for many years now and it is time for us to support them. Please contact your local state representative and senator to voice your opinion on this critical issue.

Still hoping on Lake

Street

To the editor:

Several weeks ago, I wrote a letter complaining about families in Grayling not taking pride in their homes' appearance. While writing the letter, I singled out one home in particular, that being the home that sits across the street from my residence.

Soon after my letter was published, droves of people contacted me to say that they agreed with my statements and thanked me for addressing the issue. Well, as you know this issue is still unresolved. Lawns are unkempt, cars parked beside buildings with grass growing around them, trash in yards, and the list goes on and on. There is still one home that I am still concerned about, the eyesore that sits 75 feet from my picture window. I did see the landlord looking at it shortly after my letter was published and I was so excited, thinking new siding was in the future. Unfortunately, for me, he must work seven days a week and is too busy to be concerned about his rental.

So, another summer goes by and the insulation and nails still remain. Let me see, I do believe this is the sixth or seventh year I've waited for this miracle to happen, or have I lost count? I know you haven't lost count of all the rent money you have received. My husband died waiting, please, don't let me.

Grayling. We belong to volunteer organizations who try to make Grayling a better place. We send our children to school, we go to church, and for the most part, we shop in town. We try to make a living. We've seen Grayling change from a bustling little town to a place where our wonderful, enterprising shop owners are struggling to make ends meet, and there are too many empty store fronts and property, and whatever their buildings.

> What makes me angry is that not one of the people who have written letters against the theme park have come up with an alternative. They are so vociferous about what they don't want. Now how about some ideas, and or suggestions, that would help Grayling survive. How about spending some time working with the Economic Development Council? How about volunteering to work with the Chamber? How about using some of their contacts to urge a clean industry and or business to come to It's easy to be negative, how about doing something positive? about helping? Remember, if you're not part of the solution, you're part of the problem.

I believe the members of the Board and Planning Commission of Grayling Township will do what they think is right. In the meantime, let's hear from these people about what they would suggest as a way to bring back excitement to our town. And, let's see if they are willing to put their effort and their money where their mouth is.

The Bible Speaks

Being Dead & Alive in Christ

We come to the first exhortation in Romans 6: "11Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord." Our faith union with Jesus Christ as He died on the cross in our place has liberated us from the finality, fear and force of sin and death. (Romans 6:8-10). As God the Father has accepted the finished righteous work of Jesus Christ and imputed it to us for forgiveness of sins and eternal life, even so likewise we are exhorted to reckon these same facts to be true in our own daily lives.

There are three key words pointing us to victory over sin in Romans 6. These words are "know," "reckon," and "yield." The word "know" or "knowing" is found in Romans 6:3,6,9. Our faith rest upon the facts of God's finished work revealed in Holy Scriptures. The word "reckon" means to take inventory, impute, account of, number, conclude, or draw the deduction. To "...reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin..., then, is to accept the reality that our union to Jesus Christ has made us dead to sin forever. Our being dead to sin does not mean that sin is dead to us. It means we are now free to yield our bodies unto righteousness. Yielding is further explained in Romans 6:13,16,19.

The second part of Romans 6:11 reminds us we are not only dead to sin, "...but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord." Not only have we been removed from the realm, reign, and rule of sin and death, but we have been born-again into the family of God. We are His children living under His reign and rule. God has "....blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ." (Eph 1:3). God has, "...raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus," We may now, "....come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need." (Heb 4:16).

We are, "....alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord," because a sovereign God has predestinated us from eternity past to be cleansed from sin and made holy.."4According as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before him in love;" (Eph 1:4)." 29For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the firstborn among many brethren." (Rom 8:29).

We are, "....alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord," because a sovereign God is fulfilling His plan and purpose within us. "13For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure." (Phil 2:13). "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." (Rom 8:28). "Being confident of this very thing, that he which hath begun a good work in you will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ." (Phil 1:6). "Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy," (Jude 1:24). Reckon yourselves to be dead unto sin, but alive unto God. Pastor "B"

In Memory of

Steven Jacob Helsel

Feb. 3 1985 - Sept. 7, 2005

Little did we know that morning, God was going to call your name. In life we loved you dearly, in death we do the same.

It broke our hearts to lose you, you did not go alone. For part of us went with you, the day God called you home.

You left behind so many memories, your love is still our guide. And though we cannot see you, you are always by our side.

> Your loving family, Ellen Helsel

In Memory of

Harold Helsel Sr. Sept. 13, 2001

When a person you love passes away, look to the night sky on a clear day. The star that to you, appears to be bright, will be your loved one, looking upon you during the night. The lights of heaven are what shows through, as your loved one watches all that you do. When you feel lonely for the one that you love, look to the heavens in the night sky above.

Love, your family

New Wave Products develops patch for canoes

by Dan Sanderson Staff Writer

A Grayling based firm, used as a support business for a local car wash, has come up with a solution to keep aged canoes afloat for local livery owners.

Dan Smock, the principle officer for New Wave Products Manufacturing, Inc., recently developed the canoe patch, which is used to repair canoes used in the fleets of local canoe liveries that have taken their beating and banging on the rivers.

The canoe patch is used to repair the ribs in a canoe, the portion of the watercraft that holds the frame of the canoe together and keeps its shape.

The aluminum patch goes over the portion of the canoe ribs which breaks down due to the age of the canoes and the use of the watercraft on local rivers.

Smock, the former owner of the Route 72 Auto Wash, which opened three years ago, has operated New Wave Products in conjunction with the car wash and the overall car wash industry.

Over the summer, John Gross, the brother of Diane Hutt, and the owner of Hutt's Camp and Canoeing, approached Smock regarding finding a repair for their canoes.

Gross brought in a piece of aluminum with the idea of the patch to Smock, who has degrees and training in metallurgy, which involves the study of metals, metallic compounds and alloys and how they can be applied for practical use, which got him thinking about how to repair the canoes.

rolling, and they took it over from there," Gross said.

Typically, livery owners have the ribs on the canoes welded, which has not resulted in much success.

"If you try to weld them, they just split on you again," said Jim Humes, the owner of Penrod's AuSable River Resort, "These patches are about eight to 12 inches long and they stiffen the rib again."

Gross said he was pleased to be able to help his sister and local canoe livery owners find a solution to a longtime issue plaguing the industry.

"It will allow people to utilize "I was able to get the ball equipment for longer periods, and get more use out of the canoes," he said.

> Smock circulated the canoe patches among Grayling area canoe livery owners. Last week, he received an order from a South Dakota livery for about a dozen canoe patches.

Smock said he did not know that repairing canoes was an issue, and is pleased to help livery owners as he tries to gain a threshold in the local manufacturing, engineering, machining and tooling market.

"That's part of how we're trying to build the company," he said. "They had the challenge of trying to fix the canoes and didn't know how to go about doing it, and that's just a small picture of what we're trying to do here." Smock and about a half dozen retired machinists work in his shop, located in the back of the car wash, helping with custom projects.

"Having their help and expertise will allow the company to get a foothold and an edge," he said.

Smock has outfitted the shop with machining and tooling equipment. New Wave Products specializes in making parts for car washes, metal railings and stair cases, commercial signs and custom components for cars, trucks, motorcycles, go carts and snow-

Smock is in the process of developing a system for RMA, Inc. a Pennsylvania based engineering firm, which will test tire pressure and tread width for tractor-trailers. He became involved with the project through his invention of the Dually Dolly, a component that allows dual wheeled pick-ups to travel through automated car washes.

In addition, New Wave Products Manufacturing is in the process of introducing an amplified MP3 system for motorcy-

Smock said he is receiving a majority of orders through the Internet and by word of mouth.

"There are people out there

In the near future, Smock plans to expand his operation, hoping to open up a larger manufacturing shop in the Grayling Industrial Park and bring more employees on board.

"Grayling is the hub in northern Michigan," he said, "There is all kinds of talent from past industry that has retired and is located right here in Grayling, and they love to come in here and

Frederic World War II veteran featured in film

poison gas.

In all, there were 6,000 sailors killed and another 6,000 were wounded during the battles in the Pacific Ocean.

"We saw a lot more action than we wanted to - that's for sure," Allen said.

Allen said he agreed with the decision to drop the atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki due to the vigilance of the Japanese.

"They knew if they were going to fight like that at sea, that they were going to fight like that on the mainland," Allen said.

The USS Thatcher arrived back in the United States in mid-August, following Japan's decision to surrender. The destroyer decommissioned November 1945.

Diane Hutchens, the associate producer for the documentary, said that Allen's story about returning stateside gives an emotional perspective about the end of the war.

"It makes me tear up when I watch it," she said. "They were so glad to be home and he just wanted to kiss the ground in his country."

In all, 65 World War II veterans were interviewed for the documentary.

"We tried to get a variety of voices who did different things during the war," Hutchens said.

After the war, Allen and Betty relocated to the Lansing area to raise their family. Allen worked as a quality controller for an automotive parts manufacturer.

Like most veterans, Allen said he did not talk about his experiences during the war until he started attending USS Thatcher reunions with his comrades. He has also attended reunions with kamikaze survivors. Since there are only about a dozen members from the ship remaining, Allen said he regularly discusses his experiences with students and other groups.

"I think it's something that people should know about - not only me - but other World War II veterans," Allen said.

Grayling Lions seek to start youth club

Clubs established worldwide, with the closest club located in the Traverse City area.

Prause, who is the district Alpha Leo Club chairman, is charged with trying to establish a number of clubs in the region. He hopes to duplicate the Grayling Lions Club's efforts to start more clubs in the next few years if they can get an Alpha Leo Club going in the com-

"I don't want to spread myself too thin to begin with," Prause said.

After serving the Alpha Leo Club, Prause said that youngsters would be encouraged to join the Lions as adults and carry on the organization's traditions.

About a dozen youngsters have shown an interest in starting the Alpha Leo Club.

Grayling Lions Club members plan to meet with principals at local schools regarding the organization, with plans to get the club going following the Christmas holiday through grammatical instruction.

For more information regarding the Alpha Leo Club, contact Prause at 348-5524, or Fitch at 275-4968.

Class 6 p.m - 9 p.m. Dates: Session One: September 25 and October 2

Session Two: November 12 and November 19 Location: Grayling Middle School -Media Center

Class Fee: $25 per person Materials Fee: $40.00 (one set of materials required per family) This workshop is designed just for parents who want to make their families stronger and happier. The workshop will be taught by Tracy Wilson, Certified True Colors Facilitator, and is based on the book True Parenting by Kathy Hayward. The workshop guides parents through the True Colors process to determine the color spectrum of each family member and the family as a whole. The workshop is a springboard for developing improved parenting skills, greater communication in the home, and more meaningful family relationships. The workshop is interactive, insightful and fun. True Parenting is valuable for any parent or any person who wants to be a parent and can be especially helpful for blended (2nd marriages and step-children) families. The class will begin with a basic awareness of True Colors and will then consider each family member as an individual and as a member of the family unit. Participants will examine the effect that their own parents have on their parenting styles and will also look at the relationship between parenting partners (spouses, grandparents, siblings) and how that affects your family. Over the course of the program parents will gain skills in effective communication, motivation and discipline.

Lack of opportunity and fear of progress keeps Grayling from economic growth

To the editor:

There was a time in our communities' history when things were good. Of course, there were trees that needed to be logged, bows and arrows to be made, snow to ride and ski on ... oh wait, that was 25 years ago.

Why do we have two full pages of new foreclosures in our Avalanche every week? Why is our youth graduating, getting out of Grayling and not returning? We have a pretty good idea. Lack of opportunity and a general fear of progress.

A recent letter in the Avalanche suggested that we as a community are not willing to work hard and sacrifice. My parents opened a business in this community in 1976 and trust me, they have worked very hard and have sacri-My father took a big chance by moving his wife and six children from Warren, to relocate and start a business here. The Grayling area offered opportunity and room for growth. Thankfully, this community welcomed us with open arms and my family is still in business today. Where are the opportunities now? What motivation do we give our families to relocate to the Grayling area? What reasons do we give our children to move home, after college, with our grandchildren? How are they to make a living? Most of our children and grandchildren will never live in this area unless we present them with opportunities.

I have lived in the area for 25 plus years, long enough to remember that West Branch was just a few gas stations 30 years ago. Then some investors, from outside the area, put up a mall. Now, West Branch is a thriving community with more to offer its residents than ever before. It still remains one of the most beautiful areas in northern Michigan, rumor has it, they are expecting a Meijer's to come in.

We should have faith that our county commissioners and township boards will do their homework and make the best possible decisions concerning the growth and prosperity of our community. Patrick Crosson (theme park investor) has a master's degree in business and business management, as well as a bachelor of science degree in finance. Feel free to check out Crosson and his company at axiomentertainment.com. We're also pretty confident that every person reading this paper knows someone that has filed personal bankruptcy in the last ten years or lost their

We have struggled for the last few years, trying to decide whether or not we need to relocate to a larger city along with many others that are unable to remain in our hometown and support their families. Our love for the area that we grew up in, has stopped us from leaving time and again. The generations before us built our community and earned their retirement. Those of us raising our children and operating businesses in this community year round, would like the opportunity to earn a retirement of our own. We need to open our minds and do our best to make things work with new industries and companies. It's imperative to the survival of our community that we take progressive economic action soon.

The times and the world around us are requiring that our community step up to the plate and move forward. Progress and technology may be passing us by. The theme park would only be a beginning. When a community creates a reason for people to visit, a need arises. A need for contractors, sub-contractors, retail businesses, restaurants, shopping malls, real estate sales, hotels, motels, etc. and the list goes on. I'm sure our local motel owners would prefer to make a living all year long. Right now, they hope to make enough money during a two or three month period to sustain them throughout the rest of the year.

As far as protecting our natural resources, Main Street America said they will do everything in their power to protect our environment. They intend to bring in 8,000,000 gallons of water, which they intend to recycle and reuse, so that they don't inadvertently affect our water table. The DEQ told them it required ten acres of their property to do this. However, they have designated 100 acres to their waste treatment facility so that surrounding industry may tap into the process if they choose. Recycled water and waste? What a great forward moving idea.

I encourage the concerned citizens of our community to ask questions, attend meetings, access the internet, investigate the bond issues and find out the facts. Shame on us, if we let this opportunity for economic growth pass us by. Didn't we go through this same level of controversy when Weyerhauser, AJD and Georgia Pacific built their plants here in the area? I seem to recall a group with quite a bit of financial backing, fighting for nearly five years to try and remove our National Guard base some 20 to 30 years ago. I am sure there are many members of our community, and our country, that are glad: to have the guard still with us. The DNR and DEQ are some pretty tough customers as well. We have to trust them to make firm, solid decisions to protect and keep our beautiful river.

Here's to moving forward.

Tax bills question whether or not an out of state property owner is wanted here

To the editor:

I am writing this letter in protest of the manner in which the township board conducts its business. Last November, I received a notice about a special assessment district that proposed to repave Clough Drive. I responded with a letter discussing my opposition to the project. In the minutes (1 requested that the letter be read into the record), my opposition was stated as my property does not benefit from the project. I believe that my letter to Mr. Wright made several more points that were completely ignored. I never received the notice for the next meeting to consider the project. When I talked to Mr. Wright last month, he assured me that I was sent a notice. The U.S. Post Office stated to me that the mail would not have been forwarded to me at that time because my post office box was on vacation status, but that it would have been

This brings me to my next concern and that is my tax bill. I realize that the home on Clough Drive is not a primary residence, but the tax bill that I received this summer, combined with the expected increase on the winter taxes, leads me to believe that you would rather not have people from out of state invest in property in Grayling Township. buy our groceries and gasoline locally. We eat in restaurants and shop in Grayling during the approximately five months that we spend here annually. have several accounts in a local bank, our automobile is repaired locally. I also volunteer my mediation skills, when I am here.

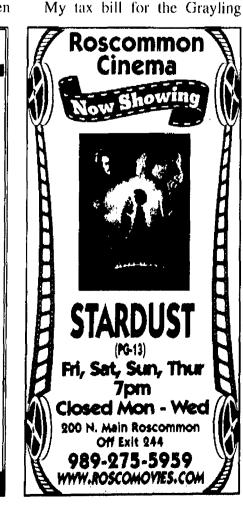

Township property is equal to 80 percent of my tax bill in Maryland, but the assessed value of our property in Maryland is 800 percent greater. I just cannot understand the huge discrepancy. I still wonder what services my tax dollars in Michigan are providing to me. In Maryland, I have my streets plowed and swept, my garbage is picked up twice a week, and my recycling is picked up once a week. I have police patrol on foot, bicycle and auto several times a day. There is an elementary school, middle school and two high schools all within walking distance. The fire department is several block's away from my home, just to mention a few of the amenities that my tax dollars pay for.

I was planning to add an addition to the house. I would have employed local craftsmen, which as far as I understand, could help the depressed economic situation in Crawford County. I am, however, rethinking it because I cannot even contemplate how much my taxes would increase as a result. As a result, I am having some serious second thoughts about what to do with the property that has been owned by my family for almost half a century. Alexandra K. Tyron-Hopko

Vikings move to 3-0 with 43-12 victory at East Jordan

Grayling scores three passing TDs, three rushing TDs on Friday

■ Isaac VanNuck catches three TD passes and runs for a TD in win vs. Red Devils

by Caleb Casey Senior Staff Writer

The Grayling Vikings scored three touchdowns through the air and three more TDs on the ground during their 43-12 victory in last Friday's varsity football game at East Jordan.

The contest was Grayling's first Lake Michigan Conference game of the season. The Vikings are now 3-0 overall and 1-0 in league play.

On Friday night, the Vikings forced a punt on 4th and 11 after East Jordan received the opening kickoff. Running back Ryan Cooper ran for 19 yards on first down. On 3rd and 7, quarterback Jimmy Osga completed a deep pass to Isaac VanNuck for a touchdown, but the play was called back due to a penalty. Grayling tried another deep pass attempt, but the Vikings were whistled for offensive pass interference on the play, resulting in 4th and 26. Grayling punted.

On 2nd and 9, the East Jordan Red Devils fumbled and Geo Bindschatel recovered the ball for the Vikings.

Grayling started 18 yards from the goal line. Two runs by Cooper and a pass from Osga to Justin Farnsworth brought up 1st and goal at the 7-yard line. After three running plays, Osga passed to VanNuck on 4th and goal for a five-yard touchdown. Jason Drudge kicked the extra point and Grayling led 7-0.

East Jordan punted on 4th and 36. Grayling took over 42 yards from the goal line after the punt rolled dead. A pass from Osga to VanNuck picked up 23 yards on 2nd and 10. A pass to Josh Stapleton gained four yards. On 2nd and 6, Cooper scored on a 15-yard touchdown run. With the extra point kick by Drudge, GHS led 14-0.

The Red Devils punted on 4th and 14 and Grayling started at the 44-yard line of East Jordan. On 4th and 6, Grayling converted with a pass from Osga to Cooper for 12 yards. On 1st and 10, Osga threw deep to VanNuck for a 28-yard TD pass. On the conversion attempt, the snap and hold failed and Stapleton, the holder for the kick, ran with the ball to the corner of the end zone for two points. Grayling led 22-0 with 9:49 left in the first half. Continued on Page 3B

36-yard line, the Red Devil quarterback ran left, fumbled, picked the ball up, and ran the other way for a 32-yard gain. East Jordan picked up 21 yards on a reverse play to bring up 1st and 10 at the 11-yard line. Bindschatel sacked the East Jordan QB on third down, and Dean posted a quarterback sack on 4th and 16 to end the drive on downs.

Grayling threw a deep pass on 1st and 10 and the Red Devils intercepted the ball.

East Jordan punted after three plays and the first half ended with the kick. GHS led 29-0 at halftime.

The first possession of the second half ended with a punt by East Jordan on 4th and 12.

On 3rd and 16, the Red Devils hit Osga as he was throwing and an East Jordan defender grabbed the ball out of the air. The Red Devils started 15 yards from the goal line after the turnover. On 3rd and 7, Dean sacked the East Jordan quarterback. Grayling stopped an East Jordan running play on 4th and 15 to take over on downs.

Local fighters win bouts

Two fighters from Grayling John Asbury (6-1) for the elite recently won bouts, including one who clinched a title belt.

Paul "Small Paul" Martin (10-2) of Grayling, who was coming off a win in an Ohio NAAFS tournament last month, defeated cage fighting midwest light weight belt.

Dave Shepard (2-0) of Grayling defeated Adam Shea (3-1) in just over a minute at the ISSIB,

"Dave is going to be tough at this class. Being 6'0", 155 makes him hard to fight. His skill level is outstanding," Martin said.

KIRTLAND CROSS COUNTRY

The men's and women's cross country teams for Kirtland Community College are not only ready to kick off the Fall 2007 athletic season, they're ready to make history. And that's before they even run a race.

Second-year head coach Steve Seager currently has 13 runners seven men and six women - to start the 2007 season, which opened with the Northwood University Invitational Midland on Friday, Sept. 7.

"We have a full schedule meets," Seager said. "This is kind of making history."

"This is the first time we've done a couple of things," he added. "It's the first time we've offered scholarships (for cross country), and we have teams comprised of actual cross country runners."

Compared to previous campaigns, the Firebirds got an early jump on their practice schedule this summer and have their coach optimistic about what lies ahead

"We look good as a team already," Seager said. "I have the expectation that we're truly competitive for the first time."

11 Seager expects the men's team to be led by sophomores Joseph Carr (Roscommon) and Paul Owen (Gaylord), as well as by Ijames freshmen Grant (Potterville), Jesse Moggo (Kalkaska) and Joseph Paladino (Kalkaska). Freshmen Spencer Derenzy (Grayling) and Joshua Dotson (Ogemaw Heights) are expected to improve and contribute more as the season pro-

"We're solid on the men's side," Seager said. "We're deep and strong."

'While the women's roster may be equally as talented, it's not as deep and is led by a pair of freshmen - a former Gaylord Blue Devil, Barb Counsil, and former Grayling Viking, Angie Martella. They'll be pushed by sophomore Fiebelkorn (Roscommon), and freshmen Lisa Koch (Roscommon), Mindy Handrich (Fairview) and Sarah Ostroski (Standish-Sterling).

KCC firebirds cross country team began their season on Sept. 7 at the Northwood University Invitational in Midland.

"Lisa, Monica and Mindy are the future ... is to not only have still learning the finer points of cross country," Seager said. "But they're going to be strong. They have a lot of energy and are learning quick. I think you'll see a sharp rise in their ability."

Seager, himself a competitive runner, said his goals for 2007 are three fold.

"No. 1, it's that they perform in the classroom," he said. "I believe in the value of educa-

"The second thing I push as a coach is they represent KCC as a college ... that when they have that uniform on, they represent the college the best they can. When we're away, they're the ambassadors for the college," he added. "The last thing is that we have fun while we're doing this."

While hoping to climb up the standings in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association's Eastern Division, Seager admits that the cross country program at Kirtland is still taking "baby steps." But he added that 2007 should provide a solid building block for the program's long-term success.

"We're laying the foundation as a cross country program this year," Seager said. "My goal, in 385.

all cross country runners but to have returning runners."

After the season opener in Midland on Friday, the Firebirds will travel to Big Rapids on Sept. 21 for the Ferris State University Invitational, to Lansing on Sept. 28 for the Lansing Community College Invitational and to Rochester for the Michigan Intercollegiate Meet on Oct. 5. The last regular season meet is the Alma College Invitational in Alma on Oct. 12, with the Kirtland runners wrapping up their season at the MCCAA Regionals in Lansing on Oct. 27.

Despite the season starting this week, Seager said he is still looking for additional runners to join the Firebirds – for this year and "I look for someone who has been running," he said. "We're looking for people who just enjoy the cross country sport. And we're always looking for next year's team."

Give your old kitchen a new look

(ARA) – Think you need a TV crew to transform the look of your home? Think again. Leslie Segrete, star of "While You Were Out" and "Trading Spaces," says it's possible for anyone to make major home improvements, especially in the kitchen, with a small budget and some elbow grease.

"The kitchen should be the hub of your home, where you can spend time with family and friends," says Segrete. "However, if your kitchen makes you want to dine out – it's time for an update."

With a limited budget, here are Segrete's tips to make your kitchen comfortable and inviting while also achieving the best bang for your buck.

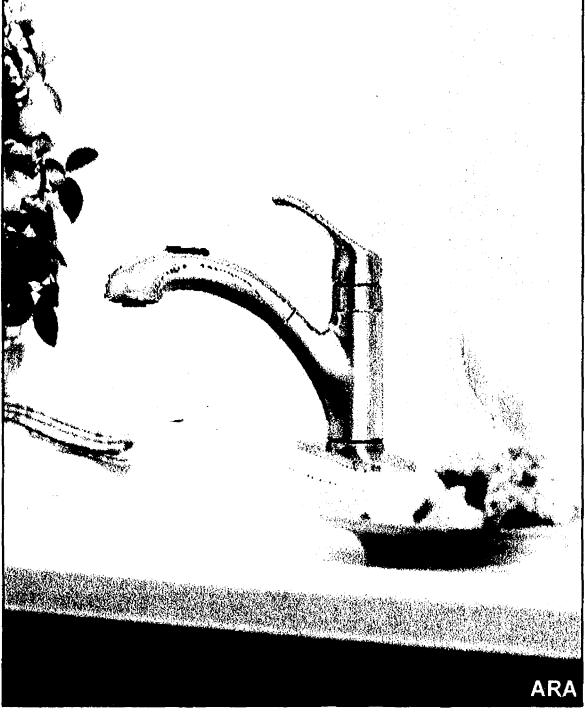

Freshen Your Flooring

There are a variety of easy-to-install, inexpensive and great-looking flooring materials available today. Laminates offer looks that replicate wood grains, natural stone and tile and are easily installed. Engineered hardwood flooring can withstand wear and moist environments. Plus, new innovative, locking systems make this an easy DIY project.

Once chosen, remove all furniture and appliances and create a level sub-floor by installing 1/4-inch plywood over your existing surface. Install your flooring and enjoy the beautiful new room foundation.

Complement the Cabinets

Do your cabinets need a facelift? Updating the look of your kitchen cabinets is an ideal project. Remove all the cabinet doors, drawers and hardware, labeling each for easy reassembly. For solid wood cabinets, strip, sand, repair and clean the wood to create a fresh surface. Then, apply a new stain and ure-thane top coat. Laminate or wood veneer cabinets can easily be updated with a fresh coat of paint; use high-gloss paint for a sleek modern finish or try a faux-finish distressing technique, for a more traditional look. Clean and prime the surface before you add a new color. For the final touch replace knobs and drawer pulls with new, updated finishes.

Accessorize at the Sink

While changing a sink may be more than you're willing or able to do, simply installing a new faucet can update styling and enhance functionality. Faucets today come in a wealth of designs and feature coordinating accessories, such as soap/lotion dispensers. Add one of the most popular styles, a high arc faucet. This style is not only beautiful, but offers practical ease for tasks such as filling large pots or pitchers, and their prominence makes them a design focal point. Or try a highly functional, pullout faucet. Featuring multiple spray settings at your fingertips, these faucets make everything from watering plants to cleaning veggies a breeze.

Create Lovely Lighting

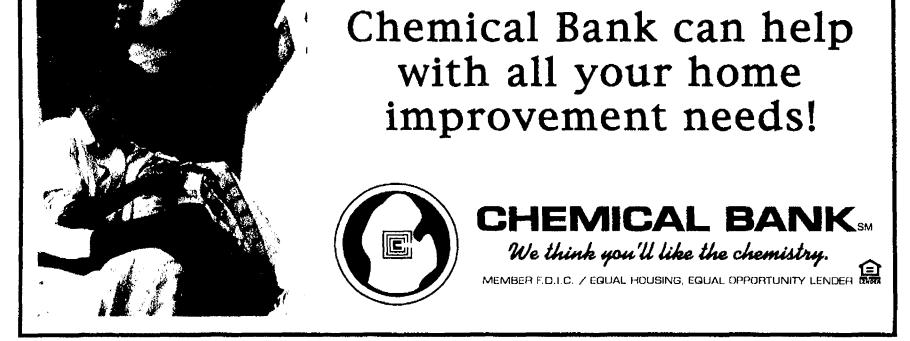

Lighting can totally change the look of the kitchen. Rather than overhauling the fluorescent ceiling fixtures, instead, simply accent your current lighting with stylish, new pieces. Swap the basic light fixture from above your kitchen table with a chandelier for a great focal point. To aid in tasks, add pendants lights above spots used most often. Or for an ambient glow, vintage wall sconces are a great addition to an Old-World kitchen or contrast in a modern kitchen. Finally, install dimmer switches to provide the perfect amount of light no matter what your activity.

Seats for Socializing

The final step for a comfortable and inviting kitchen is adding a seating area. Measure the area for the table and chairs and be sure that your selection has about three feet on all sides to allow room for movement. Depending on the style of your kitchen, choose a solid wood set for a warm, homey feel, or add a marble or glass table to complement a more modern décor. Next, add a beautiful centerpiece for a unique decorative accent and be sure that you have comfortable, upholstered seat cushions to encourage hours of chatting with friends, dining with family or a comfortable spot for kids to color, craft or do homework.

"While home improvement projects do involve dedication and patience, they pay off when you can enjoy your beautiful new room," says Segrete. "With these updates, your kitchen will soon be transformed and you'll have the satisfaction of knowing that you did it yourself without spending a fortune."

How to avoid big homeowner headaches this winter

(ARA) – Labor Day signifies that summer is quickly drawing to a close and that colder weather will soon be setting in over many parts of the country. For homeowners, the holiday also means they'll soon be facing a long list of home improvement and maintenance activities in preparation for winter.

Already time-starved homeowners can spend countless hours working on fall fix-up projects rather than enjoying what's left of the warmer weather. Add this to the increasing day-to-day activities Americans are facing, such as longer work hours, less vacation time and increased family and personal commitments, and you can see why there's a growing trend toward finding creative ways to balance work, family and the demands of owning a home.

If homeowners can't find the time to do the projects themselves, it's still best to take some preventative measures or consider hiring a professional now rather than waiting until a problem occurs in the dead of winter.

To help homeowners make the best use of their time and streamline their home winterizing tasks, Mr. Handyman, the largest employer of handymen with 250 locations nationwide, offers the following tips for improving your home's efficiency and avoiding costly winter problems:

Proper Insulation Is Key

Knowing the adequate amount and type of insulation for a home's attic and walls can save homeowners a significant amount of money. Seventy-percent of the average homeowner's energy bills during the winter are spent on electric heating costs, so it's easy to see why one of the biggest mistakes many homeowners can make is not taking the time to properly insulate.

Determining how much insulation you need is the first step. You'll want to consider, among other things, if your home is more than 10 years old, what type of home you live in, whether or not you have cathedral ceilings, if your home has a basement or if it's built on a slab, and how you heat and cool your home.

Also know that not all insulation is created equal. Insulation is identified and labeled by R-value. "R" stands for resistance to heat flow. The higher the R-value, the greater the insulating power so the colder the climate you live in, the greater the need for a higher R-value.

Crack Open the Caulk

Investing your money in extra insulation for the attic and walls can be a waste of time and money if you fail to properly winterize your windows and doors. Once you've checked for any air leaks or drafts in your windows, apply caulk to seal any potential air leaks. Re-caulking your windows will help keep moisture out of your home. Snow and ice that thaw and then refreeze can wreak havoc if the water seeps into windows and settles on sills and ledges. A fresh lining of caulk will drastically reduce the potential of damaged windows. After caulking, you might want to take one step further and install weather stripping on the windows and doors. This will help further reduce drafts and also protect against water and moisture.

Investing your money in extra insulation for the attic and walls can be a waste of time and money if you fail to properly winterize your windows and doors.

Make Plumbing Paramount

While failing to adequately winterize your windows and doors can potentially cost you a few hundred dollars a year, neglecting to insulate exposed piping can lead to burst pipes, which would cause significant damage to your home. Heating tape should be applied to all pipes that are at risk of freezing. Additionally, all exterior faucets should be drained and have their water source turned off.

Don't Forget the Furnace

One of the simplest tasks that many homeowners overlook is changing the filter in their furnaces. A new, clean filter will help the furnace run more efficiently, allowing more warm air to reach all the rooms in a home and saving homeowner money by reducing heating costs. Because the furnace can run all winter long, make sure to check the filter at least once a month. The simple motto "change the filter on the first" is a great way to develop a pattern for checking the quality of the filter.

While these tips don't cover all the tasks that need to be completed to properly winterize your home, they should give you a good head start this fall. Remember, sufficiently winterizing your home does take time and money, however it will not only improve your quality of life in the short term, but in the long run will add value to your home.

(HIT) - Fashion runways have long been the inspirational source for home furnishings and decorating color choices. Debbie Zimmer, paint and color expert with The Rohm and Haas Paint Quality Institute, shares 2008 trendy paint palettes.

"Consumers' increasing color confidence and personal style makes any color fashionable for 2008," Zimmer says. "From glasslike blues, botanical greens, dramatic black and white and whisper soft pink, color directions will drive towards individual self-expression, glamorous living experiences or an increasing awareness of important environmental causes."

Zimmer's Top Three Color Palette Choices for 2008:

Go Green

"Green may just become the newest 'neutral' color." Used as a subtle backdrop to reflect an enhanced eco-consciousness and social responsibility, green will be representative of the growing environmental movement. Mid-tone hues of fern, palm, pine and sage will be used on their own or coupled

Crewel Colors

Many consumers continue to strive for simplicity in their technology-driven overloaded lifestyles and seek a return to a gentler way o life. The crewel color palette reflects consumers' returning interest in crafts, home cooking and family focused activities. Like a rich and color filled needlepoint pattern these hues add a soulful and personalized feel to any space.

"Handcrafted items create a sense of stability and security and these warm, creamy rich colors will do the same in your space," says Zimmer.

Rich cranberry reds, warn browns, along with pumpkin orange help to create a nurturing and caring environment. Mix in deep-tonec blue and the tapestry is complete.

Crewel colors remain an excellen choice for kitchen or dining areas and can be warming, like a knitted afghan, in family spaces.

"No matter which paint hue or palette attracts your individua attention, consumers continue to have an increased appreciation for paint quality and value. After all it's a personal choice for a persona space—your home," Zimmer says.

The three R's for your roof this fall: review and repair or replace

(ARA) - Sandwiched between summer storms and winter snow, fall typically offers a nice break in the weather that's ideal for home repairs. To avoid heading into winter without the protection of a properly functioning roof, homeowners should use this season to assess their roof for damage and then prioritize any needed repairs. But, how do you evaluate your roof?

Neil Robinson of TAMKO Building Products, Inc. offers the following key components for a basic fall roof assessment:

- 1. Keep gutters and downspouts clean, allowing water to drain properly. This will help prevent water from backing up onto your roof.
- 2. Remove all debris, such as dirt, twigs and leaves, which blocks proper drainage. Trim any overhanging trees so that branches don't scrape or rest on your roof.
- 3. Check flashings around the chimney, stack vents and skylights. Wear-and-tear in these areas, as well as gathered water or debris build-up in valleys, can lead to leaks in your home.
- 4. Look for broken shingle tabs and loose or missing shingles and schedule routine maintenance.
- 5. Maintain ventilation on the roof to avoid heat build up in your attic, which can affect roof performance. Check to make sure vents are clear to allow proper airflow. Excessive heat build up in your attic space will also decrease your home's energy efficiency.
- 6. Consider consulting a professional roofing contractor for expert inspections or follow-up questions.

If you have an asphalt roof, you should assess for excessive granule loss. Some granule loss is common with asphalt roofs after severe weather, especially heavy rain or hail. Walking the rooftop for home repairs may also lead to granule loss. All new asphalt shingles will shed some "hitchhiker" or "rider" granules during shipping, application and the first couple of years in the roof's life. These are granules that were not embedded in the asphalt coating, but may have been wedged in between and on top of embedded granules. Older shingles will also lose granules as the roof ages normally over time.

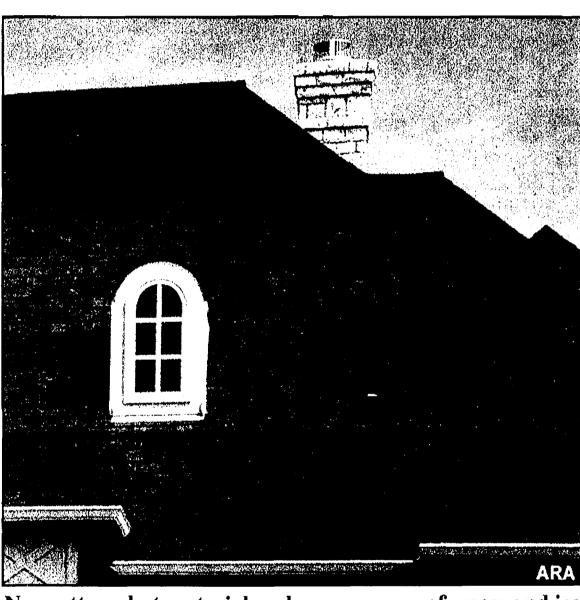

According to Robinson, you should generally inspect shingles for areas of exposed asphalt, which accelerate the roof's aging and reduces curb appeal. "If the asphalt is still covered by granules, and the shingles are not cracked or punctured, your shingles should still be providing protection," he says.

No matter what material makes up your roof, snow and ice can also cause severe damage. If you live in a region that receives a lot of snow and ice, you may want to consider adding snow guards to your roof to keep shingles intact as snow and ice melt. This will help prevent a rooftop avalanche and any subsequent damage.

If many of your shingles are severely damaged, it might be time for a new roof. Laminated asphalt shingles have traditionally been the first choice, but new residential shingle options are available. Composite shingles are extremely

One small decorating trick, one huge room improvement

(ARA) – Let's face it: Most of us can't resist a good home decorating show.

And after we've got a few episodes of "ReDesign," "Room by Room" or "Find Your Style" under our tool belts, we feel confident that we, too, can make equally inspired decorating changes in our homes. But where to start?

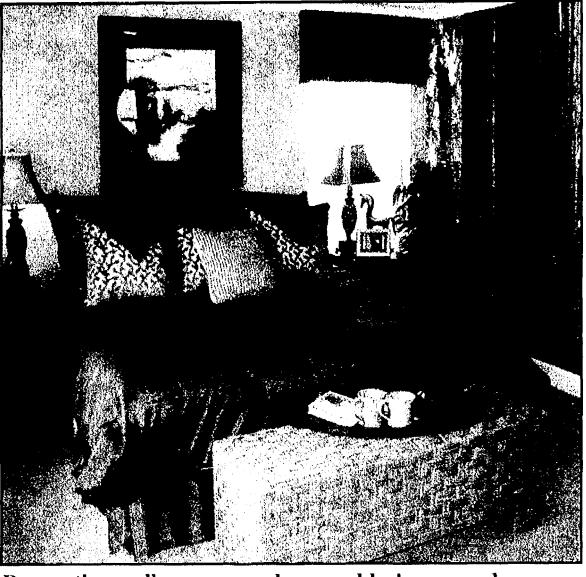

Here are some simple ways to make big home improvements from some of the nation's top designers and manufacturers:

Kenneth Ludwig – president and creative director of Kenneth Ludwig Home Furnishings, Ltd. in Chicago - is a huge proponent of textiles and fabrics. "The addition of two or three pattern fabrics in the same color story, along with different textiles (throws) in great textures adds visual excitement to a room," says Ludwig. "It also softens the edges of the corners and hard lines, and warms up a room to make it more livable."

An additional fabric element that many people forget is adding small upholstered or slip-covered ottomans for additional seating or as decorative items to fill up a room. Ludwig also suggests a skirted table with an under skirt of a plain fabric (great solid color with no pattern) with an additional patterned fabric draped on top.

Decorative wallpaper murals can add pizzazz and personalization to any room. "Adding a wall mural can transform a room from 'fine' to 'fabulous,'" says Todd Imholte, president of Murals Your Way by Environmental Graphics. "The variety of styles lets you reflect your unique tastes and memories, whether it's with a sports motif in your son's room, a custom mural made from a family photo in your family room, or a wine theme in your kitchen. The possibilities are truly endless."

Steven Southgate couldn't agree more. As design supervisor for "Divine Design with Candice

Decorative wallpaper murals can add pizzazz and personalization to any room.

Olson," he has used wall murals several times on the show's room makeovers. According to Southgate, "the Birch Trees and Pebbles murals give a high impact graphic feel, while the Sequoia mural offers outstanding graphics and superb color."

Updating your window treatments can quickly change the look and feel of any room. Ian Gibbs, window treatment design expert and founder of TheShadeStore.com, recommends that your window treatment rod be hung a few inches above the window molding to visually extend the window's height and make the ceiling appear taller. To make windows look bigger and brighten a room, drapes should be hung "wide," outside of the actual window frame, so that when drapes are pushed back, the entire window is visible to maximize the amount of light let in.

Adding greenery is also a nice way to bring the outdoors in and give a feeling of life in a room. Melissa Galt – interior designer, author, speaker and owner of Melissa Galt Interiors – suggests you keep it simple by limiting silk florals to no more than one per room. Be more generous with greenery, placing fresh plants on every third shelf of a bookcase, on top of an armoire, or near a hearth or fireplace. Containers can range from bright brass, silvery aluminum and sparkling glass to more casual ceramic or terra-cotta.

Think ceiling fans are just for summer? Think again. Switch the blade to reverse, and you can pull the hot air down from the ceiling and dramatically reduce your heating bills during the cooler months. Emerson Ceiling Fans product manager Zeynep McLeane sees dark colors and natural finishes as particularly popular this season, with dark finishes such as Oil Rubbed Bronze, Aged Walnut and Bronze Heritage nicely complementing existing dark touches throughout the home in furniture, hardware, plumbing and lighting fixtures.

Speaking of lighting, "jewelry" will be displayed on more than the human body this season. Kichler Lighting's new Light Accents come in 70 different designs, shapes and sizes - including classic teardrops, organic leaf-forms, grape clusters, beaded crystal strands and Swarovski crystal pendalogues. Attach them to your chandeliers, pendants, wall sconces, lamps, lamp shades – even curtain rods and candle holders – to add extra sparkle and let your room glow.

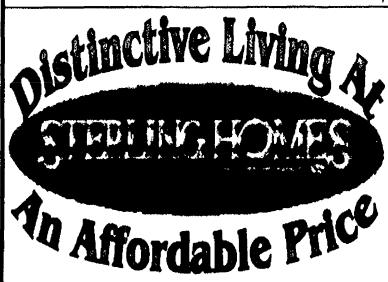

And no interior designer would dispute the value of a simple coat of paint to kick an already nicely designed room up a notch or two. Davis Remignanti of Furniture.com suggests selecting one wall of your room for a quick, total makeover using color and accent pieces.

"Paint the wall with a hue from today's trendy color palette, such as a deep, rich chocolate brown that will pick up the color from your furniture," suggests Remignanti. "Don't be afraid of dark colors for accent walls, especially in rooms with a lot of natural light. Then replace the existing artwork on the wall with a bold, grand scale piece such as the retro prints that are so popular these days, and swap your area rug for one that better picks up the tones in your upholstery."

"These small changes can take your room from already-beautiful to drop-dead gorgeous," he says.

Anyone who has ever dragged a garden hose around a yard to handle chores like these will see the value in installing additional outlets where they can be most useful.

Gardening and other chores are easier with multiple exterior water lines

(HIT) – The term "outdoor plumbing" may prompt unpleasant a water outlet close at hand enables memories for anyone born before bathrooms moved indoors, but modern homeowners might want to consider adding exterior water service want to water your plants. It also for convenience all around their homes.

Most homes are provided with just one water source for outdoor needs—typically a sillcock, or spigot, located near grade level on the side or back of the house. This single outlet is there to be used for a multitude of purposes, from watering lawns to gardening to washing the car.

Anyone who has ever dragged a garden hose around a yard to handle chores like these will see the value in installing additional outlets where they can be most useful. According to The Copper Development Association, most homes have copper plumbing, and it's not difficult or expensive to permanently extend plumbing lines already in place. Copper is recommended for both indoor and outdoor use. The convenience of having water wherever you need it makes this project more than worthwhile.

gardening on a deck or patio, having you to run drip irrigation lines directly to each container without needing a garden hose when you installing additional sillcocks or prevents having to monopolize the hose when it is needed for other chores elsewhere around the home. And once you install a permanent water line to this area, you can use it for other needs such as washing up after gardening or for food preparation if you barbecue or dine outdoors.

Homeowners who prize their lawns know that watering is often required, and having a dedicated outdoor spigot for this purpose can save both time and money. If your watering needs are intermittent, a separate spigot allows you to install a hose timer that you can set and forget, and never have to bother with connecting or removing the sprinkler hose. And if you have, or plan to install, an in-ground sprinkler system, a separate spigot is usually necessary.

For homes with sizeable properties, installing an underground water line and spigot at the far end mous amount of effort, and help you avoid buying extra lengths of garden hose and hose carriers.

Another good reason for spigots where you need them is to make outdoor cleanup easier in seasonal weather. In this case, you might consider running both cold and hot water lines to the outdoor faucet. Adding a second line is just as easy as the first. You can then use this outlet for an outdoor shower (especially useful if you own a pool), for washing cars, kids or the family dog, or for power-washing your home's siding or patio.

If you do install additional exterior water outlets, a few items of importance should be noted: Use freeze-proof sillcocks to prevent mishaps, if temperatures in your area can drop below 40 degrees. Always include a shutoff and drain valve for each exterior line in a frost-protected area such as a heated basement or garage. All water lines should be pitched at a slight angle so they will drain completely. Alternatively, compressed air may be used to purge water from the lines at the onset of winter or any time freezing may occur.

Mold coalition helps homeowners control moisture, avoid mold

(HIT) - An Internet search reveals that there are more than 33 million sites one can visit to learn about controlling moisture and mold. Coming to the rescue of homeowners and builders alike who are looking for simple, understandable advice is the Responsible Solutions to Mold Coalition (RSMC), which recently announced its top 10 nominations for the best sources of information on mold prevention. These sources and a newly updated brochure on controlling moisture and mold are available through the Coalition's Web site (www.responsiblemoldsolutions.org).

What's encouraging about these various information sources is they support one fundamental message: If you control moisture, you'll control mold. That has been at the heart of what RSMC has communicated over the past year. There is a common misperception among homeowners and builders that water intrusion is inevitable and therefore mold-resistant products are the answer. This is simply not the case. While mold- resistant products can play an important role, dry buildings and homes are the result of careful design, construction and maintenance.

In evaluating the best sources of information on moisture/mold control. RSMC identified some of the most common errors that lead to water intrusion and mold growth:

• Wet building materials: Building materials are often improperly stored at the job site. They should not be delivered until it's time to install them, and while they're being stored, they should be off the ground and covered tightly with a tarp.

· Rushed building schedules that do not allow enough time for joint compound, tile grout, paint and sprayed foam insulation to dry adequately.

· Roofs that are designed in a manner that does not provide a clear pathway for water to move off of the roof and into gutters and down-

- · Improper grading around the house that directs water into the basement.
- Water or waste pipes installed in exterior walls-in northern climates as temperatures vary, condensation can form on pipes that are normally surrounded by insulation, making drainage impossible.
- Failure to place water-handling appliances such as dishwashers and washing machines in large pans that drain away from the house. These pans are commonly available at home improvement centers.
 - Failure to replace washing machines hoses. This is the leading insurance claim for water damage.

- Failure to replace water heaters every 10 to 12 years. Most homeowners wait until their water heater fails (and usually leaks). Deferred replacement is more costly in the long run.
- Lack of flashing around doors, windows, roofs and chimneys that safely channel water away from the house, and allow walls to dry out.

The Responsible Solutions to Mold Coalition is a consortium of building industry associations, academic and governmental bodies and companies, including Corporation and National Gypsum Company. More information is available at www.responsiblemold solutions.org.
